

Principal raps reasons for college attendance

Dr. H. Locke Robertson said Friday night that students often attend university for the wrong reason.

Speaking at Lower Canada College, Dr. Robertson said that he does not "like the idea of a person enrolling in an institution of higher learning simply because it is the thing to do."

Dr. Robertson said he did not believe one must have a university degree in order to succeed. There are many careers for which one gets the best training by going to work straight from high school.

A person who is not attending university is not necessarily not learning, he added. He can learn through private reading, company training courses, adult education lectures and in many other ways.

"University is a place for scholars and there are those who simply are not scholars," he said.

"I don't think that the community should be required to support institutions for those who do not need or wish it. Such facilities as do exist must be placed at the disposal of those students who make the best use of them."

CPR President Norris R. Crump made a similar statement in a speech to the Ninth Annual Business Conference on May 14 at the University of Western Ontario.

Crump said that about 30% of students attending university "shouldn't be there. Many students attend university only for prestige."

"They are wasting taxpayers' money... being forced through... by parents concerned with the prestige factor", he said.

As an alternative, Crump called for "more vocational schools to produce skilled tradesmen".

"Everybody isn't going to be a general. We need privates," he said.

Crump earned a BSc, an ME, and a D Eng from Purdue University and has received honorary degrees from Queen's, l'Université de Montréal, Laval, Clarkson College of Technology and Bishop's.

He has been chairman and president of CPR since 1961. He is on the board of directors of some 25 other companies, including Canadian Pacific Air Lines Ltd., The Royal Trust Co., Canadian Pacific Express Co., Canadian Pacific Steamships Ltd., Bank of Montreal and Canadian Investment Fund Ltd.

Crump is also on the McGill Board of Governors.

Kenniff does not invite McGill to Montreal press conference

by MAUREEN O'DONNELL

Patrick Kenniff, President of CUS, held a press conference Friday to discuss McGill's entry into UGEQ. The McGill Daily was not invited.

Last Tuesday, Kenniff told Canadian University Press (CUP) that he had been refused the right to address the students of McGill on the UGEQ referendum by the Executive. However, when he called the press conference Friday neither the Students' Council nor the Daily was informed.

Kenniff later explained "I did not invite the Daily because I felt it would be redundant. I had already given my statement to the universities. This was for the general press."

Kenniff said after he sent his request to speak to McGill students on the question of the UGEQ referendum, Miss Sholzberg made a statement to CUP in which he said she denied him the right to speak on campus.

A CUP article dated Tuesday, November 23 said "In a phone interview Nov. 23, Sharon Sholzberg, president of McGill Students' Society, confirmed that her executive had turned down Mr. Kenniff's bid for a public hearing."

Miss Sholzberg has denied that she refused Kenniff the right to speak, and said that external vice-president Ken Cabatoff had in fact invited him to speak.

"When the president of the Students' Council makes a statement to the press, that's a formal answer," Kenniff said yesterday. "When Cabatoff invited me later, the invitation came in the form of a retraction and was not official since Cabatoff is vice-president and not president."

Miss Sholzberg said yesterday, "I will stand by what ever I said in quotes to CUP. I did not refuse Kenniff the right to speak."

Friday afternoon, CUP contacted Daily News Editor Irwin Block for a report on Kenniff's press conference. CUP was surprised to learn that this was the first McGill had heard of it.

Kenniff and CUS vice-president Richard Good met with Miss Sholzberg late Thursday night. Afterwards, Miss Sholzberg said they had said that they "hoped we won the referendum".

About the press conference she said, "I still don't understand it." During their meeting she said that Kenniff made no mention of the conference he was going to hold the following day.

Miss Sholzberg said that Kenniff told her "to call on him if I needed his help."

While in Montreal, Kenniff was in contact with Saeed Mirza, head of the Committee for a Rational Approach to UGEQ, an anti-UGEQ group.

Robertson welcomes foreign students

Dr. H. Locke Robertson and Mrs. Robertson will welcome overseas students at a reception today at 4 pm in Redpath Hall.

The reception is held annually to welcome new students to McGill and to Montreal. Other guests will include members of the University Senate, the Board of Directors and graduates.

Committee will appoint new Dean of Students

by VIVIAN WISEMAN

Will the Administration take control of the Union?

Principal Dr. H. Locke Robertson has invited Students' Society President Sharon Sholzberg to sit on an advisory committee to appoint a Dean of Students whose duties may include jurisdiction over the Union.

Members of the faculty, Saeed Mirza and Gordon Echenberg, both past presidents of the Students' Society, will serve on the advisory committee. Miss Sholzberg is the only committee member representing active-student interests.

Dr. Robertson said, "The new Dean's responsibility will be to aid student difficulties such as in health or advisory problems."

"A series of committee advisory meetings, the first of which will be within two weeks, will settle the terms of reference," he said. The Dean's relation with the present administration of the Union is among the questions to be decided.

The Union is currently run by a combined student-faculty Executive Managing Board. Its student members are Miss Sholzberg, Internal Vice-President Marty Edelstein, and the Programme Director of the Union, George Newman. The Secretary-Treasurer and the Building Manager are responsible to the Students' Society.

There are three faculty members on the Board which is chaired by Dean H.D. Woods of Arts and Science.

Miss Sholzberg said of the Board, "There is a greater preponderance of students than faculty" and thus, "the students run the Union". Miss Sholzberg had no complaints about contact between the Administration and the present government of the Union.

The Executive Managing Board has never met. The Building Manager, who is responsible for the everyday administration of the Union, follows the policy directives of the students in co-ordination with Edelstein, who acts as unofficial president of the Union.

Beaux Arts strike ends

The students and professors of three provincial art schools voted on Friday to return to classes today following a week of study-sessions to protest conditions and course standards at the institutions.

At l'Ecole des Beaux-Arts de Montréal, l'Ecole des Beaux-Arts de Québec, and l'Institut des Arts Appliqués de Montréal students agreed to accept an offer to establish a Ministry of Education study commission the composition of which would be decided with student collaboration.

They had demanded a royal commission of inquiry which would have to be set up under the authority of the Lieutenant-Governor. Associate Minister of Education Gilles Bergeron claimed the set up of such a commission would take too long.

The students agreed to the government offer on the condition that the composition and mandate of the commission be finalised within three weeks.

(UGH) The annual Toilet Bowl Prep will be played Friday, December 3 at 1 pm. The Students' Council will meet the staff of the Daily to get in shape for the title match during Winter Carnival. See page 8 for complete background to the game.

Frie urges social change

Dr. John Frie, an expert in the field of community development, will discuss how the socially-conscious student of today can fulfil his role as a citizen in the community.

He will address the recently-established Social Development Committee at 1 pm in room 457 of the Union. The Committee is planning a programme of social action to begin this winter in underdeveloped districts of Montreal.

Dr. Frie has had much practical experience in this type of work through his association with the Urban Social Redevelopment Project in Montreal.

Under the Verdun Community Action Project, the Committee plans to initiate a tutorial service and recreational project to broaden the horizons of children in the district and thus combat some of the psychological barriers to better education.

The Committee cites "a lack of ambition fostered by an inadequate conception of the resources available in life" and "a failure to conceive the importance of education partly because of the limited educational and financial capacities of the parents" as some of these barriers.

The Committee's projects will continue through the summer months.

Psychiatrist says:

Students no more kooky than others

by HENRY SZECHTMAN

Students are not "more kooky" than non-students, the chief psychiatrist of the Mental Health Service said Friday.

Speaking to the Psychology Club, Dr. John Lohrenz outlined the four main psychological problems facing students, which he said were the same problems that confront all adolescents.

The first problem he described as "seeking one's own individuality." This involves choosing what one likes in one's parents and adapting it as one's own personality.

Dr. Lohrenz said that "assuming a standard of morality and ethics", and "vocational or professional commitment" were the second and third problems.

The fourth problem facing adolescents Dr. Lohrenz called "an identification with a biologically determined role." This means coming to accept one's role as male or female, he said.

What makes those problems different for university students is their campus environment. At McGill, students are under pressure for academic excellence, Dr. Lohrenz said. This produces in many students a constant fear of failure.

Also, because university students must postpone the resolution of some of the four problems anxiety may develop, Dr. Lohrenz said.

A common anxiety resulting from the postponement of the "vocational or professional commitment" is what Dr. Lohrenz terms "the final year syndrome". It occurs when students getting their diploma begin to ask themselves frantically, "What do I do now?"

Students who come to the Mental Health Clinic are not "really sick in the usual sense," Dr. Lohrenz said. "They are bugged up inside and want to talk with somebody."

"I believe strongly in the therapeutic role of talk."

On the average, five to ten per cent of university students in North America consult a mental health service at least once. Of these, fewer than one per cent require hospitalisation.

Answering a question from the audience, Dr. Lohrenz said that he did not know whether the majority of the students who are sick consult the service.

"Many students fear that their visit will get on their university record... this is only a myth," he said.

Lemelin, Schull will speak at ASUS lectures

In the first of a series of lectures sponsored by the ASUS, Roger Lemelin will speak on "Les Plouffes Revisited", next Thursday at 12 noon in L-26.

Lemelin is the noted Quebec author of "The Plouffe Family", both the novel and the popular bilingual television series.

The second in the ASUS Speakers Programme is Joseph Schull, author of the bestseller "Laurier". He will speak on Tuesday, December 7 at 1 pm.

Schull recently gained national recognition and praise as author of the book, which was serialised in two issues by "Weekend Magazine" before its official publication.

Commerce open meeting

Candidates disagree on UGEQ

by ROBERT TAYLOR

Charles Kasner and Malcolm King, the two candidates for the Commerce seat on the SC, disagreed on the question of UGEQ at Friday's open meeting of the Commerce Undergraduate Society.

Kasner said that McGill had been "railroaded" into UGEQ and that the move should have been ratified by referendum before affiliation. He also said that the referendum of December 1 should be constitutionally binding on the SC.

King said he favoured McGill's entry into UGEQ because education is a provincial matter and because English-speaking students should be represented in this provincial organisation.

He also said that with 70% of UGEQ's membership consisting of English-speaking universities and Collèges Classiques, the organisation will be more conservative than it was originally.

Kasner said that he was not in favour of free education at the present time because the government cannot afford it. He cited medicare and old-age pensions as more pressing problems.

To alleviate the financial problems of students, he called for increased grants to universities and increased bursaries to be repaid after graduation.

He said free education could not be implemented overnight and that he was not in favour of salaries for students.

Kasner said that if elected his principal duty would be to represent "Commerce views" to the SC.

King said he recognised the need for a medium between the SC and Commerce students.

To this end, he suggested that the "Balance Sheet" publish a record of the motions passed at SC meetings and proposed the extension of the Student Auditing Service by which fourth-year Commerce students would review the books of the clubs and societies which depend on the SC for their budgets.

Gerry Ross, the present Commerce rep on the SC, spoke briefly on student syndicalism, which he called "the foundation of UGEQ".

He said that syndicalism placed students in a position to criticise society as the intellectual element of society. In return, students receive some sort of remuneration.

Student leaders continue UGEQ dialogue

Two student panels will sound off on the UGEQ controversy today.

At 1 pm in the Union Ballroom, Students' Society president Sharon Sholberg and external vice-president Ken Cabatoff will debate against former president Saeed Mirza and Lionel Chetwynd, a law student.

At 10:30 pm, a panel of four students will discuss UGEQ on The Way Things Are on CBMT (Channel 6). The panel consists of Miss Sholberg, Chetwynd, Daily Editor-in-Chief Patrick MacFadden and Bernard Weiser, a third-year economics student.

The war

That the last two major encounters in South Viet Nam have resulted in heavy losses for the American-backed Saigon regime is a sorry commentary on how the morale of the National Liberation Front has been underestimated. Despite the fearful carnage suffered by the guerillas in the battle of the Ia Drang valley, the upshot is that American losses have now for the first time topped those of the Korean War. And over the weekend, the guerillas decimated hundreds of South Vietnamese troops in the deserted Michelin rubber plantation near Saigon. Only by bombing the plantation into obliteration will it be possible to root them out; and since rubber is one of the mainstays of South Vietnam's shattered economy, such a course can only lead to the total collapse of the political structure. It is precisely this that American intelligence in Saigon fears most.

How much of the real state of affairs is going to get through to the American public over the next few months is a matter for conjecture. A grim story in Friday's Globe and Mail recounts how "a steady stream of misinformation about the war in Viet Nam is being provided by US Military spokesmen". The story goes on to relate how 90 enemy bodies, supposedly strung along the barbed wire of the US camp at Plei Me, never in fact existed. Yet the story got wide play in the American press.

And Jack Foisie, writing from Saigon in the Los Angeles Times, recounts that each day the Ministry of Psychological Warfare in Saigon lists the stories the Vietnamese and local Chinese press may not publish. The most recent ban is on all stories about American demonstrations against the war. Foisie goes on to say that the renewed censorship now being considered by the American military is a direct result of the wave of horror that swept the US when the truth about Ia Drang came out.

Another outcome of the American defeat can be guessed at from a Reuters report from Tokyo in Sunday's New York Times. A new 400-bed hospital is being built in Tokyo for American casualties. The thought of the hundreds of coffins being flown back to the United States certainly would not be considered good "psychological warfare" by the US information Agency.

With the arrival of Defence Secretary McNamara in Saigon and the decision to increase the number of bombing raids on North Viet Nam, the war has moved into a new phase. The next targets appear to be the military and industrial complexes in the North; and it may also be considered necessary to occupy Cambodia to prevent "infiltration". When this happens, it is unlikely that China will be able to remain out of the war much longer. It will be instructive to see what the master chessmen in Moscow will do then.

Mirza Speaks

Dear Sir,

The undemocratic manner in which the members of the executive committee have forced UGEQ on McGill is extremely lamentable. However, it is gratifying to see that a referendum has been forced on this issue and I would like all students to bear in mind the following facts about UGEQ before they vote on Wednesday, December 1:

The Universities of Laval, Sherbrooke and Montreal withdrew from the Canadian Union of Students (CUS) in September 1964 to form UGEQ. The reasons for withdrawal as stated by their delegates were, "different language, culture needs, and aspirations".

McGill sent observers to the founding convention, but after sizing up the entire situation, the students' council last year decided not to join UGEQ. The basic reasons were the avowed UGEQ policies of unilingualism, restriction of membership to either UGEQ or CUS, and student syndicalism. (We know how McGill students feel about this last ideology by the negligible turnout last week for the 'La Grenade' strike). Nonetheless, we did decide to co-operate and participate in all projects compatible with the best interests of McGill students.

The past few months have revealed other policies of UGEQ. They have come out openly for socialisation of all professions, active, unquestioning solidarity with labour unions, and forced social change through student strikes. One has just to read the journal of the UGEQ which was circulated about a week ago on the lower campus (l'Etudiant-Citoyen, October, 1965) to verify this. In addition, the UGEQ Report on the Founding Congress (containing its charter, constitution, rules, and resolutions, and on sale to the general public for 45¢ at UGEQ office, 801 Sherbrooke St. E., Apartment 610) leaves no doubt as to the political leanings of UGEQ.

Our student leaders argue that we have to be in UGEQ to change it. They maintain that we may be able to effect change in the course of time to suit the needs and aspirations of McGill. Recall that these universities separated from CUS because they found it incompatible on the grounds of "language, culture, needs and aspirations." It is impossible to believe that UGEQ would now be willing to compromise the very basic aims for which it was formed.

UGEQ seeks to become the only student body that would deal with the provincial government on educational matters, and we are being frightened into believing that we must join or be left out in the cold on educational matters vis-a-vis the provincial government. This simply is not so. In March, 1964, I attended a meeting of the Bursaries Committee of the Ministry of Education in Quebec City. M. Vailancourt, who was then the president-elect of l'Université de Montréal questioned the presence of the English-speaking universities at talks that were concerned, at that particular time, solely with problems of French students. The education minister was very firm, and stated that under no circumstances would educational matters negotiable at the student-provincial government level ever be dealt with without the presence of all major universities in the province.

There is no reason why we cannot work with all students in the new Quebec for a better society. McGill and l'Université de Montréal collaborated a good deal last year towards these ends.

Certainly university students can be more than mere sign-carriers in a picket line. For example, in the La Grenade strike — why not organize teach-ins to educate both students and general public on the issues and problems, from both the labour and management point of view; why not even offer McGill's good offices to act as an arbitrator in the dispute. An all-student organization for non-partisan, objective action is definitely called for in the Quebec of today. UGEQ is not such a body.

I must say that it was not my intention to become involved actively in campus politics this year, but in all honesty, I have found it impossible to remain on the "sidelines" on this issue. And the issue is now clear and simple. McGill should not remain in UGEQ, even for a trial period. This trial period is not being set up so that McGill can decide on UGEQ. It is being set up so that UGEQ can look us over, and judge whether or not we adhere faithfully enough to UGEQ's avowed policies to merit membership. Joining UGEQ lends McGill's good name, large numbers, and substantial funds to an organisation whose current policies, we are certain, are incompatible with the best interests of all students in general, and of McGill students in particular.

I urge you all to vote no on Wednesday.

Saeed Mirza,

Chairman, Committee for a Rational Approach to UGEQ at McGill.

Shall We Do It?

Dear Sir,

Two of the major disadvantages which oppose a truly democratic and responsible vote on the UGEQ referendum are 1) widespread misinformation, and 2) blinding irrationalism.

Unfortunately, a group called the Committee For A Rational Approach To UGEQ At McGill (CFARATUAM), instead of attempting to give us a better understanding of the issues, have merely succeeded in confusing themselves, and have acted irresponsibly in their actions.

CFARATUAM have stated that by joining UGEQ, we would be giving our moral and financial support to 1) unquestioning solidarity with labour unions; 2) socialisation of all professions; 3) transfer of all representation from individual universities to geographical ridings; 4) social change through general strikes; 5) compulsory adherence to a single political ideology.

There are completely and utterly false statements. None of the above are UGEQ policy!

CFARATUAM is a group of individuals who just a few days ago pressed the panic button, and in this state of mind began searching for information. Did they go through their research objectively? Did they try to reasonably look at both sides of the question? NO. They just picked up a copy of "Etudiant Citoyen", printed before this year's UGEQ congress, and subsequently began scaring the crap out of themselves!

How many people in this group have spoken with French students across Quebec? How many went to the UGEQ congress? How many of them have read the UGEQ Constitution, or have continually kept up with Le Carabin or Le Quartier Latin? And how many have read this year's CUS and UGEQ reports and literature (whose pages number in the two thousands)? None that I know of, and none as far as can be inferred from what they say. Of the people that I have spoken with, they've shown an amazing ignorance of the issues.

When one of its members, speaking to the West Indian Club on the disadvantages of free education, a UGEQ policy, threatens members that this might interfere with the future of foreign students at McGill, and he does not realize that CUS had adopted free education 2½ months before UGEQ... this is ignorance!

When another argues that McGill will be isolated if they stay in UGEQ... but fails to realize how much more isolated we would be if all other students in province were members and we were not... this is ignorance!

When another argues that the phrase, "young intellectual worker" is proof of Communist thinking... this is irrationality!

We are being offered the opportunity of working hand in hand with other Quebec students. We are allowed to be members of both UGEQ and CUS for the next ten months. At least give UGEQ a chance, a trial period. We've been members of CUS for thirty years... what has it ever done for us?

Once we join, we can pull out of UGEQ at anytime, but if we vote 'no' now, its 'no' forever!

We are being given the privilege to vote on Dec. 1, along with it goes responsibility. We have an obligation to know the facts!

Walters stars in nets

Redmen bow to Blues 5-3

by LAWRENCE HAIMOVITCH

Gord Cunningham's two goals and Bill Stewart's clutch goaltending lifted the University of Toronto Blues, defending SIHL champions, to a 5-3 victory over a determined Redmen squad Saturday night in the Winter Stadium.

Cunningham's goals, both brilliant efforts, were scored in the first period and gave the Blues a lead they never relinquished. Stewart was sensational in the Toronto nets, coming up with the big saves when they counted. Murray Stroud, Hank Monteith and Paul Laurent scored the other Toronto goals while John Tibbits, Rick Gordon and Dave Flam replied for Redmen.

Exciting contest

The large and enthusiastic crowd was treated to a fast and exciting contest with great goaltending by both goalies, especially Ken Walters in the Redmen cage, and hard checking and good skating on both sides.

Walters was rewarded for his performance by being named the first star in the game. Cunningham was chosen the second star while Mike Jenkins, a tower of strength on defence for Redmen, was given the third star.

Redmen pilot Dave Copp was generally pleased with his club's performance.

"We played well," Copp said, "but that bad first period really hurt us."

Throughout that disastrous first frame, Redmen experienced difficulty in clearing the puck out of their zone. The talented Blues took advantage of this to score three goals, one coming with Rick Moore in the penalty box.

Two tallies in middle period

Redmen scored twice in the second period, the second one a neat play with Rich Ripstein combining with John Tibbits.

The third period was thrilling with Redmen pressing for a tie. With less than five minutes remaining Tibbits was sent into the clear by Ripstein but Stewart robbed the veteran with a magnificent stop. The last Blues goal was into an empty net, with Redmen playing with six attackers.

Redmen meet Loyola Warriors in an exhibition game on Wednesday and resume SIHL action on Friday when they play Waterloo Warriors. Warriors finished eighth last season and are not rated as a strong contender this year.

Red Hots: Blues won their first start Friday night dropping Laval 4-1 ... Western and Toronto are early leaders in the SIHL, each with two wins in two starts ... Western edged Guelph 5-4 on Wednesday ... Redmen lost to Blues by the same 5-3 score last year ... the fifth goal was into an empty net with three seconds left ... Steve Monteith scored four goals in that game ... Monteith is expected back soon after a two-month bout with mononucleosis.

Scoring Summary
First Period

1-Toronto: Cunningham (unassisted) 9:55
2-McGill: Flam (Doleman) 10:47
3-Toronto: Cunningham (H. Monteith) 12:47

Penalties: Thompson, 4:12; Moore, 12:35; H. Monteith, 13:10; Jenkins, 15:36; Doleman, 16:45.

Second Period

5-McGill: Gordon (Jenkins) 5:29
6-Toronto: Laurent (Cunningham, H. Monteith) 13:05
7-McGill: Tibbits (Ripstein) 19:35
Penalties: Laurent, 8:13; Moore, 8:13; Bedford, 13:52; Cunningham, 17:35; (Double minor); Bedford, 17:35; (Double minor).

Third Period

8-Toronto: H. Monteith (Laurent) 19:52
Penalties: St. John, 3:30; Awrey, 5:13; Cunningham, 17:12.

PASS: Redmen center Skip Kerner eagerly awaits a pass from rookie defenceman Roger Helal. Tight checking by the Blues prevented Kerner and linemates Rick Gordon and Rick Moore from mounting any sustained offence.

McGill girls excel at Women's Sports Day

McGill girls won the bowling competition and tied for first place in badminton at Saturday's Women's Sports Day. The event was marred by bad weather and the absence of the Bishop's team because of a road accident.

The girls defeated Queen's and Toronto in the bowling competition. Barb Scott of McGill registered the top score with 570 points.

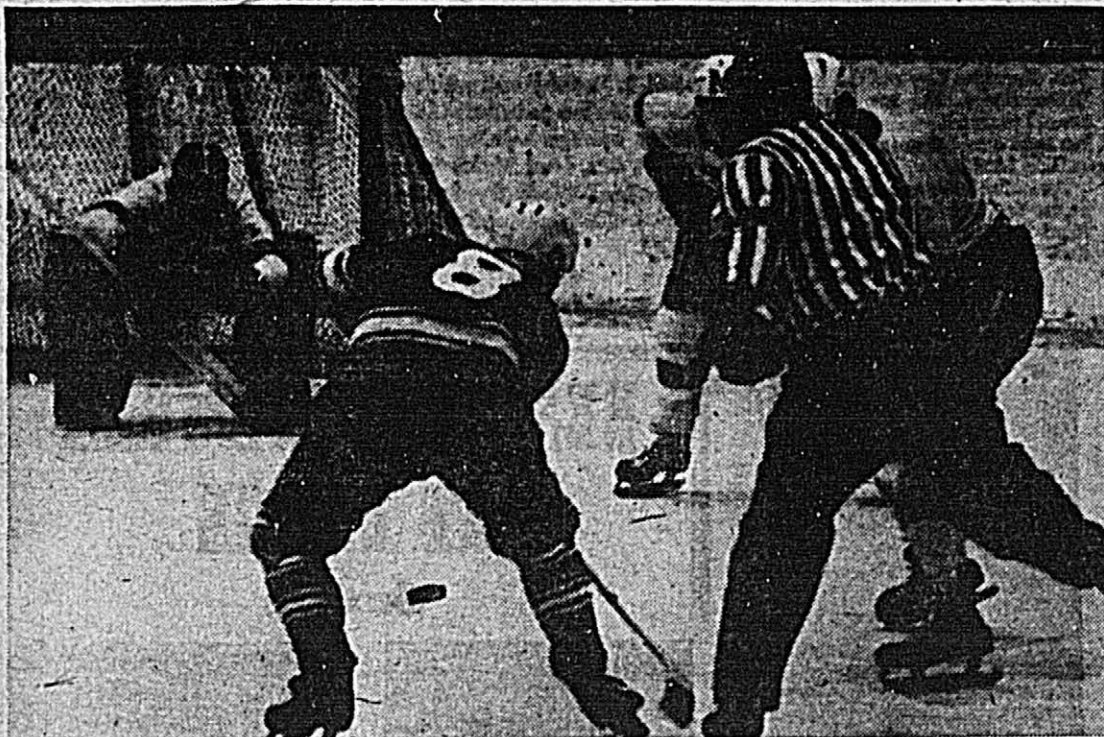

In badminton, McGill tied for first place with Toronto. Queen's and U of M followed in that order. Sue Boville playing second singles and Wendy Fine and Kathy Stacey playing doubles won all their matches and have proved themselves to be serious contenders for the Intercollegiate titles.

The basketball team finished second among seven teams. Carleton and Macdonald tied for first place but coach Heather Dinwoodie of McGill was pleased with her team's performance, especially their victory over first-place Macdonald.

McGill also placed second in the fencing competition, finishing five points behind the U of T. Top point getters for McGill were Pauline Gibson and Christiane Schweiger.

In the volleyball tournament, the McGill team came fourth behind U of T, Macdonald, and Carleton. The other teams were U of M, Queen's and Toronto.

FACE-OFF: Referee Robert Lord drops the puck between Blues center Paul Laurent and Redmen defenceman Jim Bedford. A crouched Ken Walters is ready for a quick shot. The veteran goalie was spectacular in the Redmen cage kicking out 25 shots, many of them from close in and was awarded the first star by a panel of sportswriters.

Indian cagers edged 69-68

by KEN PIAFSKY

On Friday night, the basketball Indians lost to CMR 69-68 in an exciting contest played at St-Jean. It was the Indians' first loss after two wins.

The Indians led through most of the game and took an eight-point lead into the fourth quarter. The Cadets battled back late in the last period and with one minute remaining the Tribe led by only one point.

The teams then each scored two points and with only 20 seconds left, the Cadets were awarded two free throws. The two tosses were good and put the Cadets in the lead.

With time running out, the Indians desperately tried for the winning basket. They moved down the court and Barry Chaim, who played well all evening, took a shot that hit the rim and bounced out. The buzzer sounded and the game ended 69-68.

The Indians' play was encouraging. They passed and shot with accuracy and if three members of the team had not fouled out the outcome might have been different.

Squaws win

The women's hockey season got off to a good start Friday night as the team defeated MacDonald 2-0 at the Winter Stadium.

Veteran defenceman Lynn Schofield scored the what proved to be the winning goal with a smashing drive from the blue-line. The other McGill marker was scored by Miss Johansson.

CMR beat the Indians with fast breaks and long court passes. If the Indians can adjust, they could defeat the Cadets in their next meeting.

The Tribe has looked good in its three games, and could win the city championship again this year.

Gymnastics Club

The Gymnastics Club is showing a film of the 1964 Olympics tomorrow night at 8:30 pm in Room B23-24 in the Union.

The Club meets regularly every Monday and Wednesday from 5:00-7:00 pm in the Currie Gym. Any new gymnasts are cordially invited to attend the film and the practices.

WENCE ZENKO: Evenings 7-9 pm, 321-1878

pull that chain

by W. G. FALLS

The most useless event on the McGill sports calendar will again be staged on the Lower Campus next Friday at 1 pm when the Daily and the Students' Council meet for the fifteenth annual Toilet Bowl Prep. Judging from past performances, McGill should come up with a win.

At the Daily's opening practice session Friday evening, playing coach Dave McFarlane outlined a radical new offence which he feels should confuse Council even more than it is at present. This new system features a line overbalanced to the left with Patrick D. MacFadden playing the key role. As well, a dual-quarterbacking setup will be tried for the first time, with Sandy "Buff" Gage and McFarlane playing the left and right sides respectively. Both quarterbacks exhibited strong throwing arms in Friday's practice.

Several rookies were also impressive. Mike Boone showed a surprisingly deceptive sleeper play and Bob Taylor exhibited flashes of brilliance. Regulars John Skinner, Elly Alboim and Marc Raboy ran with a lot of hustle but will have to improve.

Defensively, the Daily will try to red-dog the opposition. Defensive captain Irwin "the square" Block promised complete coverage while J.J. Dufort agreed to scout the SC squad.

Council expects to work from the split-T formation with which they are most familiar. Although Council has considerably strengthened itself from last year, there exists the possibility that stellar fullback Sharon "Bronco" Sholberg and articulate signal caller Ken "Prairie" Cabatoff will be sidelined for the remainder of the fiscal season. Should this occur, they may have to call in the star of last year's meeting, Saeed "Concrete" Mirza, who has just recently appeared back on the McGill political scene.

This match could be a meeting of minds, but with the bone crunching defence that both sides possess, it could be a stand-off. Daily forces will have to watch for Council's very effective option play known as the "Walkout".

A thriller is in the offing. Take it in if you are not demonstrating.

Redmen swimmers second in triangle meet at Currie Pool

by DAVE CARIN

The Redmen swimmers were beaten out Saturday morning by Collège Saint-Laurent in a triangle meet at the Currie Pool.

The final score saw College St. Laurent with 75 points, McGill with 65, and Sir George Williams University with 27.

As expected, Dick Pound came first in both the 50- and 100-yard freestyle events while Bill Peers took the 100-yard backstroke. Bob Bourne, described by Coach Peter Rutherford as a good, steady middle distance man, came up with a win in the 400-yard freestyle and placed second in the 200-yard freestyle. Roy Gravel was the only other Redman to receive winner's plaudits, as he took the diving event.

Haïtes third

Eric Haïtes, an OQAA champion, only came third in his specialty, the butterfly, as he had just completed swimming to a second place finish in the 200-yard individual medley. The Nantel brothers had a fine day for CSL as Pierre won the 200-yard freestyle and placed second in the 100- and 400-yard freestyle events. Bruno stole the 200-yard individual medley and placed third in the 300 freestyle. Michel Grignon was the only other individual winner for the College (the 100 butterfly) but they also won the 200-yard relay medley and the 200-yard freestyle relay, beating out the Redmen by 4/10th of a second.

John Walmsley, the Redmen manager, pointed out that the St-Laurent team is one of the powerhouses in Quebec but suggested that McGill could have beaten them had their whole team been present.

Coach Rutherford sees the loss as a good lesson and will be looking for an improved performance next Saturday when the Redmen play host to the U. of M. and Laval in another exhibition meet at 10:30 in the Currie Pool.

Top scorers

Last season, the Blues hockey team placed four men in the top ten of the Senior Intercollegiate Hockey League scoring race. Steve Monteith paced the loop scoring a total of 60 points while his younger brother Hank garnered 57 points. Gord Cunningham and Ward Passi were also in the top ten, tallying 36 and 33 points respectively.
